

Letter from the Editor

Dear OA – Friends.

Recently I felt how powerless I am against this disease. That powerless scared me to the point of the insanity; of wanting to give in and eat and eat. Going to a meeting and sharing how I felt was the medicine I needed that day. I must never feel ashamed or afraid to share when I am feeling the pull of this disease. To do so is to try and control it and I can never control it. I am powerless against the insidiousness of compulsive eating. I must accept that I am powerless. That is okay: God is never powerless. I just need to give it to my Higher Power and have faith that HP would lead me.

The disease is like the tides and undertows at Daytona Beach. It will pull us out and under and we will die no matter how much we struggle - unless we stop fighting it and have faith in our higher power and the 12 steps. Stop struggling against the current and a force greater than yourself will take you in the direction that will make it possible for you to reach shore. It is this path, not ours, that we must swim and when we do that we find our way back to sanity and a happy and useful life. Just like the current, the disease caught me off guard this week and it almost had me under but HP led me to safety once again because I asked His help and accepted the help I was given.

Your friend in recovery,
Jane C.

Step Eight and Forgiveness

My personal research on Step Eight has convinced me that the principle of forgiveness, rather than discipline, is more descriptive of the aims of Step Eight. In fact, the word forgive, in one form or another, appears at least 15 times in our OA book, The Twelve Steps and Twelve Traditions.

There must be a period of healing before making amends. For me to tell someone I am sorry for hating them does not address the painful emotions behind the hate. Many years ago a member shared at a meeting, "First you deal with the emotion, then you deal with the situation."

In practicing this, I discovered that there were some things I didn't have the power to forgive. Instead, I pretended that they didn't matter. I excused or rationalized them. Of course, that only buried them deeper. Then it occurred to me to pray for a spirit of forgiveness.

Suddenly things began to happen. All the rage and anger began boiling up and spilling over. I had to talk and rave and cry about it to get it all out. Fortunately, there was an understanding person handy to help me through it.

When my tirade subsided, I was able to think more clearly. What I realized is that I was holding people responsible who really did not know any better. It was like resenting a two-year-old for acting like a two-year-old. I was able to see my antagonists as misguided children and to forgive them for only acting out what they themselves had been taught. It had never occurred to me to forgive them, and I don't think I could have if I had tried.

My old resentments seemed to dissolve and float away. It was such a freeing experience that it was as if the events I'd resented for so long had never happened.

The spirit of forgiveness had released me so well that there was no longer any need for amends; the negative emotions were gone — all replaced with love — and, even after 10 years, they have never come back.

Discipline is certainly necessary in working every part of the OA program, but the only Step which really focuses on the principle of forgiveness, as I see it, is Step Eight.

Step and Tradition of the Month

Step 8:

Made a list of all persons we had harmed and became willing to make amends to them all

Tradition 8:

Overeaters Anonymous should remain forever non-professional
But our service centers may employ special workers.

"As long as we have not forgiven people for the harms they have done us, we will find it impossible to make sincere amends to them for our site of the conflicts. "

The Twelve Steps and Twelve Traditions of Overeaters Anonymous," pg. 71

For me the essential element in Step Eight is forgiveness. Until I learned how to forgive I could not even see where I was at fault.

I was not aware of the deep resentment I had against my parents for the abuse I endured as a child. My insecurities, fear of rejection, and low-self-worth were all a direct result of suppressing those feelings. I began to truly search my past, and the old memories of abuse returned. As I examined them, hate, humiliation, and deep rage boiled out of me in floods of tears. I knew I could not forgive these wrongs myself, especially where my own defiance was often at fault.

It suddenly occurred to me to pray for a 'spirit' of forgiveness. Gradually a peace enfolded me. Forgiveness came, and with it came complete deliverance from those damaged feelings. From that moment, I was healed. Once the miracle of forgiveness occurred, the amends happened naturally.

Some actions Groups & meetings can take to promote stronger meetings?

- Group inventory once a year and a plan for the year.
- Schedule for meetings and topics
- Newcomer follow-up plan
- Greeter
- Newcomer's meetings before or after regular meeting.
- If a newcomer is there – change the format that night to a newcomer meeting
- Medallions every five years , Card for years in-between signed by group.
- Fellowship meeting before the meeting – once a month.
- Regular business meetings – once a month – revisit the format to ensure that we strengthen the meeting with a plan for limiting time for shares.
- Bring up changes in a slow process for major changes to meeting formats, etc. to allow every member to evaluate and participate.
- Each meeting should foster adherence to traditions.

Thoughts to Digest

Jumping to conclusions is not an aerobic activity ♦ Expectations are pre-meditated resentments ♦ We don't get run over by the train, we get hit by the engine (the first bite) ♦ A coincidence is a miracle in which God chooses to remain anonymous ♦ The smartest thing an OA member can say is, "Help" ♦ Abstinence delivers everything food promised ♦ Pray to catch the bus, then run as fast as you can ♦ A S L I P is Serenity Losing It's Priority
