Is Your God Big Enough?

“Made a decision to turn our will and our lives over to the care of God ‘as we understood him.’” —Step 3

I’d had a personal spiritual relationship with the God of my understanding for 20+ years before I came into the OA program. I had a daily practice of turning over my will and life, and I’d experienced many answered prayers. However, the prayer to maintain weight loss remained unanswered.

Soon after coming to OA, I asked a friend about her spiritual journey in recovery and how she came to believe in a High Power. She said she had struggled in sobriety, believing that God, if he existed, was a punishing God, and that he was forever displeased with her for the things she’d done. She said her spiritual awareness came from the words “as we understood him” in Step 3. How she’d understood God didn’t work for her. She realized she needed a loving God whom she could trust to care for her, so she chose to understand a different God who could. Allowing herself to find a Power not only greater than herself but big enough to meet her needs was the beginning of a lifelong recovery and service to others.

Reflecting on her experience, I saw that my relationship with the God of my understanding wasn't big enough. God is infinite; my understanding is finite. Although I approached God with many of my "big" needs, I believed I could solve my weight problem in my own strength and by my own will by dieting. I'd lost weight successfully many times, only to be confounded by immediate return to bingeing upon reaching my "goal." I realized that although I was inviting God into my living room every day, I had left him there as I went into the kitchen. I recognized that "my" God wasn't big enough, so I stretched my understanding of the Higher Power in my life to include the Presence that accompanies me, hand in hand, all day.

On the physical level, not only did I reach my "goal" weight through the OA program, but I released an additional 15 lbs. and have maintained a healthy body weight for the past 3 years. On a spiritual level, I reap the Promises of the OA program by pursuing daily awareness of the Presence of my Higher Power whom I call God. From God I receive love, guidance and the courage to whole-heartedly work the Steps. I ask myself every day, "Is my God big enough to meet the challenges of today?" If I'm willing to stretch my understanding of God enough to be able to trust turning over my life and my will, the answer is always "yes".

I Understand

"Made a decision to turn our will and our lives over to the care of God 'as we understood Him.'" —Step Three

There is a part of the 3rd Step that is profound: a God of our understanding. This step does not ask you to find, research or prove doctrine about God but it points you to spirituality. For those of us not raised with God, this may not be easy to process. And yet, it gives an answer to prayers that we have not yet spoken. Our Higher Power understands what our needs are and what our hearts want to say. Step 3 says; you are accepted even if you never studied God's name, or read religious literature, or practiced any God-inspired rituals. God knows there is a relationship already established and waiting for you through the God of your understanding.

—Tony B.

A Prayer

"The only requirement for OA membership is a desire to stop eating compulsively." —Tradition Three

I have to tell you, Tradition 3 is an answer to a prayer. I don't know how I could remain in this program without such a tradition. There are times when all I am hanging on to is a desire—a desire to not eat compulsively. I don't stop thinking compulsively; and sometimes, I don't fulfill my part by perfectly maintaining my food plan. But, my desire to not eat compulsively is always there.

This silent desire is a meditation; an anthem of truth that says no one needs to remain lost. It is a message of hope. Because of Tradition 3, I am able to walk into the rooms of OA beaten and broken and know for sure that I will be accepted fully. God, thank you for the program of Overeaters Anonymous. Thank you to the fellowship for helping to hold me together. Thanks to all who read these words and find a reason for hope.

The Third Step Prayer, A Shift in Perspective

God, I offer myself to Thee—to build with me and to do with me as Thou wilt. Relieve me of the bondage of self, that I may better do Thy will.

Take away my difficulties, that victory over them may bear witness to those I would help of Thy Power, Thy Love, and Thy Way of life.

May I do Thy will always! —Third Step Prayer

I've had an epiphany. Over the past year or more I have become burdened by many of the things of life. My mother had a stroke and has been moved to a nursing home across town—she can no longer speak, or walk and the independent woman she once was is gone. I visit twice a week. My sponsor became ill and I anguish at the doctor's inability to make her well. There have been vast changes in my spiritual community, and though change is not always bad, it can be difficult all the same. My office became virtual which is wonderful, but the transition of moving 30 years of history into the virtual world has had its challenges, making me feel a bit cloudy. The week of Irma, the new tenants of my former office space began destruction and reconstruction two weeks before I was supposed to exit. Not to mention, Hurricane Irma destroyed my son's home, so he, the girl-friend-in-law and their pit-bull moved into my tiny two-bedroom condo. Life has been very tight and tense lately, and for the past three weeks roofers have been noisily repairing every roof in our complex. Even in recovery life is difficult.

Last weekend while standing in a group of my fellow compulsives I had a noticeable shift. As we stood hand-in-hand reciting the Third Step Prayer and spoke the words “Take away my difficulties” I realized I had at some point in past months begun praying these words as victim asking God to erase my difficulties. I wanted Him to remove all my problems, all of them—including my compulsive eating!

The Third Step Prayer is part of my daily routine. How can it be that this prayer that I have memorized and come to know and love so well could become so distorted in my mind? Somewhere along the line, my head and heart had changed its meaning, and completely ignored the second half of that sentence. “... that victory over them may bear witness to those I would help...” I've not been asking victory over my difficulties, but for rescue. I selfishly wanted God to come in and mystically edit all the things out of my life that are uncomfortable. Perhaps it was not my heart and head that changed its meaning, but my disease. I had been building resentments.

This week my husband had a bleed of the blood vessels of his left eye. This is not good. This is difficult. He claims it is nothing to worry about, but we who've been in the rooms a while know the truth. This is not easy.

Paradigm shift. Praying “Take away my difficulties” is not a magic talisman to ensure that I will not have hard times in my life, nor will it make grief disappear. There is pain in life, and I want to live. This prayer is not about my rescue, but my witness—that I would be able to help and guide others through their difficulties, not through instruction, but by example. Now when I pray this prayer, its meaning is restored to “Take away my difficulties” [Lord, give me the strength and grace to cope with the struggles of life] “... that victory over them may bear witness to those I would help of Thy Power, Thy Love, and Thy Way of life.”

—Dawn K.

Tiny God Syndrome

*"My sponsor said I was suffering from 'tiny God Syndrome'."
—For Today, February 22nd*

One of my childhood prayers referred to God as my father; unfortunately, I carried my experiences with my real dad into my image of God. No wonder the first thing I did as an adult on my own was to divorce myself from that image. Sadly, I had no other roots with which to grow my spiritual life, and it went totally by the wayside for nearly twenty-five years.

OA allows us to choose our own concept of God, not dictated by familial beliefs or church doctrine. I needed a big God who could restore me to sanity, especially where food was concerned.

This reading goes on with the sponsor suggesting that her sponsee 'borrow' her God until she could find one that worked better. I didn't need to borrow one, but was able to let go of those childish ideas that didn't work for me. As I grew in recovery, that loving God-image has also grown.

I actually have a relationship with God today, something that never developed in my early life. I can turn to Him for help with my food, something I wouldn't have even considered before taking Step One. By trusting that God would help me, I have remained abstinent for nearly twenty-five years, almost as long as the time I wandered with no spiritual direction.

I am in Albuquerque for OA board of trustee meetings. The flight here wasn't bad, and I had an amazing massage which really relaxed me. Boy, that may become part of my travel routine. My very tight, sore muscles are nice and relaxed today, and I'm ready to do good work for Overeaters Anonymous.

I do not relax on my spiritual disciplines when I travel. I set the alarm for early so I could start my day out with this great, big God of mine. I believe it will be a very good day with Him taking such good care of me!

Adulting

*"...I made a decided effort to reenter the adult world."
—Alcoholics Anonymous, Fourth Edition, A Late Start, page 536*

It is a beautiful Saturday afternoon and I am inside, cooking. Before I started even preparing my lunch, I had a few thoughts of "I don't wanna!" However, fortunately, I was able to take action anyway. The indispensable willingness that I read about this morning in the Big Book in the paragraph on Step Six comes to mind. I am doing batch cooking for the week, a self-care task that makes my weekdays much easier. Another motivation is to get my cooking done while my partner is out of town; not everyone appreciates the smell of cooking collard greens.

When I went to check on my greens, I started to think about maturity and the very cool term, adulting. This is what I am doing today. I am acting like an adult (which is a good thing as I have been one chronologically for many, many years now). And as frequently happens, the Big Book offers many lessons about growing into adulthood.

The little girl within me is growing up. She is no longer a 2-year-old having daily temper tantrums. Nor is she a rebellious adolescent, taking contrary action just to be contrary. In addition to all of the other wonderful spiritual gifts and byproducts that I have received through working the steps, my insides and my outsides are much more aligned. I am grateful for the willingness to act like an adult today and the steps I take to keep me here.

May you each enjoy this beautiful day!
—Lovingly, Atiya M.
